that the generated technologies didn’t required economy of scale to be adapted. The initial hypothesis was empirically confirmed, resulting on a recommendation to consider the heterogeneity characteristic as a primordial purpose on planning establishment of policy measures to the agricultural sector, according to this way the discrimination and not incentive that can appear from simplistic perception about agricultural sector reality.